

Eadweard Muybridge Aka Helios Flying Studio

Eadweard Muybridge (1830-1904) was an English photographer most famous for his pioneering work of photographic studies of motion. He also took photos of some of the transcontinental railroad areas. While Alfred A. Hart's and Lawrence and Houseworth's photographs are much clearer, we present a collection of images selected from hundreds taken by Muybridge. His business was called Helios' Flying Studio, as noted on several stereographs.

UC Berkeley Library Collections has digitized Muybridge's images and they are available for viewing at this link. (See also <https://digitalassets.lib.berkeley.edu/calheritage/ucb/muyfind/figures/>).

We present these 15 select Muybridge photos for your review. The image identifiers are noted as EMC00xx, where EMC represents Eadweard Muybridge Collection, and 00xx is the exact number of the image as we have assigned it.

TDHS donation number is 36 and you can find these select Muybridge images at this link.
